

Confessions of a Mask (Chinese Edition)

Confessions of a Mask was the beginning of Japanese author Yukio Mishima's fame, who was well-known as the proud of Japanese traditional literature, and been nominated as a candidate of Nobel Prize for Literature twice. This work was issued in 1949, and it narrated hero's lives and families in first person. When the hero became an adolescent, the book portrayed his inner world and psychological activities. He was cowardly in nature, and was shamed of his coward. When love grew, he tried to approach to women, and was in love with his classmates' sister Yeiko. But he was separated from her because of his un-confidence of his abilities in the end. After Second World War, Yeiko was married with another man, while the hero still tried to date her secretly. He was seeking a Platonic love. This work was the life of the writer to some extent.
