Remember that they ate my voice and put in warm beauty that here rose on dark water. The haunting last words of a ghost from a dream, Paul Schrall's dream. Paul is tormented nightly by these words of his dead father while he begins work on a book about America's most notorious serial killer, Ezekial Detmer, who prays on young children and is still on the run. In tracking this monster will Paul uncover the true meaning behind this enigmatic statement, or will he be sucked into a surrealistic nightmare of police and criminals, the hunter and the prey, the living and the dead, where nothing is as it seems, the past and the future converge, everybody has a flame to extinguish and a score to settle, and revenge is the fuel to their fire? In the end, will they all be burning, burning, burning? Find out in Crematorium, the debut suspense thriller from D. H. Schleicher.
